Four remain in hospital in north Vancouver. Per Stadlund, chief engineer from Haugesund, continued in critical condition today while three others were recovering.

The federal transport department is investigating the mishap. There has been criticism of a 30-minute delay in sending aid to the stricken 5,300-ton Ferngulf.

Capit. William Archer of Oslo said he sent two distress signals after the fiery explosion and then "kept shoving morphine" into the injured as they lay on the deck awaiting aid.

A Vancouver city fireboat was withdrawn from the battle against the flames because of a city ordinance prohibiting it from moving outside of a boundary several miles from the scene.

President Gordon today, while declaring it was not up to him to suggest what should be government policy on the grain rates, finally was asked by Douglas Fisher (CCF-Port Arthur) whether there was a lack of realism in them.

BCE FAVORED? BCPC Rate Curb Blasted By Opposition

VANCOUVER (CP-CCF and Conservative leaders criticized the decision of the Shrum royal commission recommending against any rate increases now for the B.C. Power Commission.

Conservative Leader Deane Finlayson commented that "if Dr. Gordon Shrum says the power commission can operate profitably without a rate increase then he should now be asked to operate it himself along those lines."

Arthur Turner, CCF member of the legislature for Vancouver East, said the royal commission recommendation, made in an interim report Monday, was a move to force the power commission into an unsuccessful operation so it would lose public favor.

"Considering the B.C. Electric was granted a rate increase of from eight to 12 per cent last fall," Mr. Turner said, "this would seem to pave the way for new favors to private industry."

ASK EIGHT PER CENT

The power commission had asked for a rate increase of eight per cent.

The Shrum commission said it believes the power commission will continue to operate on a satisfactory basis and will remain in a sound financial position without an increase.

Mr. Finlayson said the fact the Shrum commission recommended against an increase for which the power commission had asked "means either the Shrum commission or the power commission is incompetent."

"Since the government approved the Shrum commissioners it is bound to abide by their recommendations," he said.

"And so the new five-man power commission board will be bound to proceed to operate at a profit without increase and without subsidy."

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's plan to make ineligible as tax deductions hospital bills paid by the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan has been attacked in the Commons as "discriminatory."

There doesn't seem to be any difference between paying premiums to a government plan and paying premiums to a private plan, J. W. Pickersgill (L-Bonaville-Twillingate) said as the Commons debated resolutions embodying tax changes proposed in Finance Minister Fleming's April 9 budget speech.

"It is a complete discrimination," said Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East).

Mr. Fleming argued that this was the only way the government could apply the principle that bills paid by the government may not be deducted from income.

Valley Labor Urged 'Be Press-Conscious'

Labor unions have been rapped for poor relations with the press and other information media.

And the "rapper" is himself a labor leader.

Dan Radford, Vancouver executive of the Canadian Labor Congress told the regular monthly meeting of the Kelowna-Penticton-Vernon Labor Council here, that labor unionists, who do not appreciate the value of public relations through press and radio are not being realistic.

He said the best example of union activity in the field of good press relations is the effort of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"This union," he said, "is the best-organized and biggest union in the country never misses an opportunity to get publicity." He urged labor chiefs to study the methods of "the manufacturers' union" and put them into practice.

Mr. Radford told the meeting that whether they liked it or not, the aims of labor and politics are so closely related that "we can't avoid becoming politically involved." He said while unions had grown in strength and importance, they had also grown more dependent on political action.

The council went on record as a supporter of the CCF "until such time as another party more favorable to labor may be formed."

The council passed a motion to assist CCF groups in this district in any future general election.

The council was informed that the $1,000,000 CLE fund for striking Newfoundland members

Civic Workers Get Pay Hike, Sick Benefits

Council Okays Two-Year Retroactive Agreements

Formal approval for two new working agreements with civic employees, granting increased wages and salaries and extended sick leave, was given by city council last night.

The two-year contracts, effective Jan. 1 of this year, involve the "outside" workers, members of the Kelowna Civic Employees Local Union No. 338, and the "inside" workers, members of the Kelowna City Hall Employees Union No. 472. Both are locals of the National Union of Public Employees (CLC).

In both cases, workers won an extension in accumulative sick leave to 30 days from 20 days. Each employee is allowed 10 working days of sick leave yearly.

The "outside" workers gained board increase in salaries from 12.7 per cent in 1958 to 12.8 per cent in 1959. An additional 2.8 per cent will be paid during this year. Wages over the 1958 rate for this year will be getting an additional 2.8 per cent during 1960, meaning an overall increase of 12.8 per cent.

As an example, the basic rate for common labor last year was $1.38 an hour. This year the rate is $1.56 and next year will be $1.60. Overall across-the-board increase for the "outside" workers amounts to 15.5 per cent for the two years.

Some adjustments were made for City Hall employees and then a 10 per cent across-the-

Tax Up? - Down? Time Will Tell!

Taxpayers will know next week for certain what the 1959 mill rate will be.

Whether the news will be good or bad remains to be seen. Under the municipal act, councils must have their budgets formally approved by May 15.

That's by Friday of next week. Wheels were set in motion last night to meet the legal requirements when city council gave three readings to a budget by-law and to a bylaw to strike a mill rate. However, the figures will not be filled in until several heavy sessions are held by committees and the council in full to arrive at figures the mayor and aldermen feel the city can barely get by on and yet will not tread too heavily on the taxpayers' toes.

Council, faced with a hectic week, not only due to the budget preparations but to several other commitments, frankly admitted "daylight can't even be seen yet" in the estimates.

Some or all of the council will be working over the weekend in the hope that a final figure can be reached before next Monday's city council meeting.

But no one could be sure. Mayor Parkinson, who wants to be in on the final budget decision, will be out of town most of next week, including Monday and Tuesday when he will be attending an industrial conference at University of B.C., Vancouver.

If the budget is not ready for approval Monday night, then a special council meeting will be held later in the week to bring it down.

Big Chain Store To Locate Here

It was learned from a well-informed source shortly before press time that a major departmental store firm will locate in Kelowna.

The well-substantiated report said Woodward's would build an ultra-modern structure on Shops Capri site, presently being developed by Capozzi Enterprises.

Tom Capozzi confirmed the report but declined to elaborate. However, it is known several Woodward's representatives have visited Kelowna on numerous occasions in the last two months.

Mr. Capozzi said if a department store is built on the site it would be in addition to Shop-Easy Stores. The building is rapidly nearing completion.

Mr. Capozzi in refusing to elaborate on the Woodward's report, admitted "there are several irons in the fire."

Canadian Militia To Be Given A More Valuable Role

Last week it was announced in Ottawa that the role of the reserve army units will be changed. They will become part of the civil defence force with survival duties their main interest.

This is not exactly news. Four or five years ago, in Ottawa General Simmons, then chief-of-general-staff, answering a direct question from a representative of this newspaper, said that the only purpose of the reserve army units filled was to provide a basis for some officers to obtain some training that they might be in a position to take over should an emergency arise. At that time, certainly, he was not too interested in the strength of a unit, just as long as there were enough other ranks to provide the officers with a training force. He felt that a reserve unit, as a unit, would be of little use in a war.

That the militia units would move into the civil defence area was indicated a couple of years ago. At that time, however, there was such a general protest by the units that the plan was modified. Now, however, apparently the government has decided to put the plan into effect.

It is obvious that the role of the militia as a military arm has disappeared with the changing tactics. It is equally obvious that there is a very real need for an organization trained and ready to meet the emergencies which will be created among the civilian population in the event of an attack.

Hitherto civil defence has been an activity which has not caught the imagination of the general public. Nor will it, until the need arises, which will be too late. Certainly the militia units can serve a very useful function as the heart, the trained heart, of a civil defence force. The personnel will be trained so they can undertake reconnaissance and radiation monitoring, move into damaged areas to rescue and evacuate the injured, control traffic, clear roads, build bridges, keep law and order. Not glamorous, perhaps, but most important activities in a crisis.

There will, of course, be many heartburnings among the militia men. Some, probably, will feel the new role is an affront to those regiments with long and illustrious battle honors. However this is a changing world and the role of an army in any future war will not be what it was in other wars. Rather than affront, it is a compliment to the militia units that, their former role having become useless, they have been selected as the key force in what could be a most important movement. They can serve their country and their fellow citizens to perhaps even more advantage as a civil defence force than they could as a military unit.

It is good to know that the units will retain their identity, their names, their honors, their dress, their badges and their affiliations. They will not disappear. They will remain as a proud and active body, performing a new but even more important role than that they have filled hitherto.

Influence Of Parents

Although it is still a couple of weeks until Mother's Day, we have been interested in a story from England that shows that, no matter what day of the year, it is always Mother's Day.

In Luton, in England, the mother of a two-year-old boy just couldn't take all the trouble that seemed to come her way recently and she walked out.

Her two-year-old son missed her so much that he would neither eat nor sleep and spent most of his time crying for his missing mother. Finally he fell ill and a doctor who was called said that the young lad was literally dying of a broken heart.

A newspaper story, with an appeal to the mother to return, was read and heeded by the one most directly concerned and she returned. Shortly afterwards, her husband reported that the difference in his young son since his wife's return was nothing short of a miracle.

We often wonder if the parents consider these things when they quarrel or become estranged, separated and even divorced. Too many of our young people are not only treated to this kind of behavior by their elders, but they are caught helplessly in a situation where they are torn from one or both parents, whether they wish it or not.

Is it any wonder that we have what is known as juvenile delinquency, emotionally disturbed children and children and young adults who become mentally ill at some stage in their lives.

Soon it will be June again and the crop of married couples will reach its annual peak. As these newlyweds go out to establish new homes we hope they will be able to weather the many storms that will come their way, not only for their own but for their children's sakes.

If they do, they will be doing their family and their nation a double service by cutting down on the incidence of delinquency and mentally and emotionally disturbed children, and providing instead a happy home and all that goes with it.

Influx Of U.S. Investments Causes No Government Alarm

By M. McINTYRE HOOD
Special London (Eng.) Correspondent
For The Daily Courier

LONDON—The influx of United States investment capital into British industries is causing a great deal of concern in financial circles here, although that concern is not shared by the government. The discussion now going on about the influx of this American capital is reminiscent of those which took place in Canada in the last two general election campaigns.

There are those who see dangers in United States companies securing a stranglehold on some of the largest and most profitable of British manufacturing concerns.

In the last few months, United States companies have invested some £50,000,000 in buying important British companies. This is direct investment by purchasing the controlling interest. Many millions have been invested in the shares of British companies without securing control of them.

It is estimated that there are now some 700 enterprises with their head offices in the United States operating in Britain. They employ about 400,000 British workers. So there are advantages. The biggest advantage is the large and growing outflow of dollars every year in dividends.

NOT ALARMED
This question has come so much into public discussion that it was raised in the House of Commons by several Socialist members. Heathcoat Amory, chancellor of the exchequer, however, in his replies, made it known that there is no cause for alarm or action over American investment in shares of British industries. It was very much in the interests of the United Kingdom that there should be as free a flow of capital as possible both ways.

The amount of British capital invested in other countries, he added, was very much in excess of foreign capital invested in Britain. He assured the House that the government was continuously reviewing this matter to protect Britain's interests.

EARLY ELECTION OFF
Prospects of an early election definitely faded out of the picture when the government introduced its finance bill into the House of Commons. The bill is a long and complicated one, with 28 sections and eight schedules.

It will involve long discussion, and the best guess I have heard in the lobbies of the House of Commons is that it will not be finally passed until some time in July. In fact, the government is going ahead with its legislative program as though an election were nowhere in sight.

A dramatic touch to the coming election was given, however, when Sir Winston Churchill, in his 85th year, announced in a speech to his constituents at Woodford, Essex, that he would again be in the field as a candidate. "I shall do my utmost to serve you as long as my breath holds out," said Sir Winston, in closing a typical Churchillian address.

MISSION TO RUSSIA
Aftermath of Prime Minister Macmillan's recent visit to Moscow is seen in the announcement that Sir David Eccles, president of the Board of Trade, will lead a trade mission of eight officials and business men to Russia next month. Purpose of this mission, said Sir David in the House of Commons, was to prepare the way for a possibly spectacular increase in trade with the Soviet Union. Later he said, however: "This is not a mission to get orders. It is to establish the right framework within which business men can act afterwards."

Both ministers and business men are satisfied that there is plenty of potential trade with Russia waiting to be exploited. It is made clear, however, that there will be no long-term credits available to Russia, nor will the mission even discuss changing the list of banned strategic goods.

Again a tallpipe to this item—the Tube Investment Group announced that it has negotiated a £2,000,000 contract with the Russian government to supply stainless alloy steel tubes from its factories at Birmingham and Chesterfield.

WILL BE REMEMBERED
In a television question and answer broadcast, Hugh Gaitskell, Socialist leader, made two statements which may not go down very well with radical elements in his party, and which will be remembered when election time comes around.

First was that he does not approve of trying to impose the closed shop in industry by strikes or other form of victimization. Second was that in the event of a conflict between the government and trade unions on economic policy, "in the last resort the elected government must obviously stand by what it believes in."

These words were construed by commentators as a warning to the extreme trade unionist that he does not approve of some recent actions of unions with reference to forcing the closed shop on industries.

CANADIAN PLAY

A Canadian play, with its setting in Cape Breton Island, and written by Joseph Schull, a Canadian now studying history in England on a scholarship, occupied a feature spot on the BBC television program the other evening.

It was a stirring production, complete with pipers, bagpipers and with mingled Scottish and Canadian accents. The play involved the struggles of a young Canadian doctor with himself in deciding whether to stay as a doctor to the islanders or to seek more profitable fields on the mainland. The plot was rather thin, but it was a fairly authentic piece of Canadiana.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

By THE VENERABLE D. S. CATCHPOLE

THE ELUSIVE DUCAT

Periodically one reads in the papers about the "mythical ashes" which are won or lost when England plays Australia at the exciting game of cricket. Apparently, there are no ashes. England and Australia simply pretend that they exist. Rather different was the Elusive Pimpernel of whom Baroness Orczy used to write: "They seek him here, they seek him there. Those Frenchies seek him everywhere. Is he in heaven? Is he in hell? That damned elusive Pimpernel!" Well, in that case, the object was "real", and not mythical like the Ashes.

What bothers me is the (and I quote) "multi-million dollar fruit industry". I see this written in reports in the newspapers and I am quite intrigued. I feel like going on a treasure hunt with the millions of dollars can be as far as I can find out they are as mythical as the ashes. They are certainly as elusive as the Scarlet Pimpernel. To get away from my two examples, I am calling this investigation that of "The Elusive Ducat". It sounds nicer than "The Elusive Dollar" which is rather vulgar.

Now, of course, if you were to ask the winning Britons where the ashes were which they had just won, they would laugh and declare that they hadn't got them. If you asked the gallant company of young blades during the French Revolution where the Scarlet Pimpernel was, they wouldn't have a clue. So also when you seek information as to where the elusive ducat is, in these days, nobody knows. They all, with one consent, begin to say that they haven't got it, and indeed haven't seen it. If they have had a glimpse of it, that was the occasion when they paid it out to H. M. Income Tax Department. Let it be clearly understood! There is no use looking for these missing ducats. They simply don't exist. There is no multi-million dollar fruit industry, except in the minds of newspaper reporters. Ask the farmer! He will tell you that he lives on the banks. The banks never have any money because they have lent it all to the farmers. It is patent that the B.C.F.G.A. hasn't any money. The packing houses are in agreement that they don't make any money or if they do or did, it exists chiefly in the minds of the imaginative.

It is simply amazing! Where can this Elusive Ducat be? Ask any man whom you regard as a man of substance if he can help in any project and he will look at you in amazement. "Why do you think I can help?", he will reply; "surely you don't think that I possess the Elusive Ducat! You couldn't be so foolish!" So you think that if these people haven't got it, someone must; and so you go to the employees. They turn you over to their bosses and the Labour Leaders will tell you that they don't have any money. No ducats are to be found in the pockets of anyone who works with his hands.

Canvassers for funds will tell you that, quite obviously, none of the people whom they approach has ever heard of a ducat, or its modern equivalent. If they have any money at any time, they pay it all out to the grocer or the butcher who, if you approach them, are simply on the verge of bankruptcy. It is all very confusing. "Ducat, ducat, who's got the ducat? Where do the millions go which pour into this valley from the fruit industry?"

Someone please help these elusive ducats. They also have an unhappy reputation. I cannot help wondering if they ever think of leaving behind them, when they die, instead of a S.D.B. plugged with securities, a reputation of having been generous people. Personally Speaking, I would rather be secured with blessings than blessed with securities if I ever had to give an account of my stewardship.

OTTAWA REPORT

Death Penalty Law Bypassed

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

OTTAWA—We all have cause to plead forgiveness for some things which we ought to have done, but have left undone. And the Diefenbaker government is no exception as regards this human frailty.

But in such an important matter as the death penalty, has the new government really needed to split hairs to flout the law of the land for two years? Could it really not make time to handle the question definitely?

Our law, as set out in section 206 of the Criminal Code, clearly states that: "Everybody who commits murder shall be sentenced to death."

Yet up to last November, as this column pointed out at the time, 14 out of 18 persons convicted of murder since the advent of the Diefenbaker government, had had their punishments commuted from hanging to imprisonment. Today, that tally of reprieves stands at 21 out of 27, an exactly similar proportion.

PARLIAMENT SHOULD DECIDE

Last November, also, this column urged that, if the death penalty is virtually to be abolished, the existing law should be changed by parliament, not in the secrecy of the cabinet chamber. And murderers, as citizens, are entitled to know what the effective, as opposed to the legislated, law is. How inconceivable it is of the cabinet to wait until the eve of the date set for execution before telling the poor trembling criminal that he need not prepare to meet his Maker just yet.

Last week, former Liberal cabinet minister Paul Martin raised this same point, asking in parliament whether the right of parliament to make our laws is not being infringed by the repeated commutation of the death sentence by the cabinet.

Mr. Speaker Michener seemed to be splitting hairs when he slapped down Paul Martin's point, alleging that there was no factual background for any assertion of the rights of parliament. His point is that the exercise of clemency towards a convicted murderer is a prerogative of the Crown. This, he said, is no concern of the House of Commons, but concerns only the Crown's representative, namely the governor-general, and his advisers, namely the cabinet.

Or, to put it in plain language, clemency is exercised by the cabinet.

The occasional exercise of clemency, especially in cases where the jury recommends mercy, would correctly be exempted from parliamentary interference on this basis. But it could justifiably be argued that the present government is not merely exercising clemency in exceptional cases; it has established a pattern of action which runs contrary to the law as made by parliament.

Such action, I would argue, is government by order-in-council. That discussion concerns a merely the method. The principle is something else. Good arguments can be advanced for abolishing "legal revenge" by the citizenry against a murderer.

Opponents of the death penalty decry the Old Testament law of "an eye for an eye". Humanitarians assert that the death penalty falls to serve the purpose of a deterrent.

On the other side, a substantial body of opinion urges that the death penalty be retained, especially in cases of premeditated or brutal murder. To this argument, little exception can be taken. Yet the present government has reprieved men convicted of murder most foul, even murder committed in the course of another crime such as armed hold-up rape.

The government has considerable popular support for its policy of turning soft to killers who act without premeditation and in otherwise law-abiding behaviour. But, if killers are to be treated more softly, then we are entitled to demand that our children and our women, and even ourselves, should be protected by a much tougher policy towards persons who carry lethal weapons such as pistols. We are entitled to demand a tougher attitude towards persons who commit crimes which tend to lead to murder, such as kidnapping and rape.

It would perhaps be reasonable to show clemency to the person who seizes a meat-chopper and strikes his victim in the heat of the moment. But I can see no reasonableness in showing clemency to the person who sets out, say, to rob a bank, with a loaded pistol in his pocket, and who finally slaughters some innocent person.

ATTRACTIVE IN UNIFORMS

Editor, Daily Courier.

Dear Sir: I am not in the habit of writing letters to the newspapers, but after reading in your April 25 issue a letter written by a female who signs herself "A Mother", I just had to add my opinion. This mother, with an over-inflated ego, comments on uniform for students.

I have seen many women in uniform during wartime, and observed their smart, neat appearance. Believe me, they were very attractive, and they were plenty of attention by the males. They didn't have to parade in short shorts, etc., to "attract attention" as described by "A Mother". Their minds were more mature along these lines, less sex conscious, not wishing to be noticed by boys, but "Men".

Uniforms don't have to be drab and ill-fitting. They can be neat and attractive.

I think "A Mother" should grow up and act like a mother.

RELIABLE INFORMATION

The Editor, Daily Courier.

Dear Sir:

The other day The Courier took to task "Northern Neighbours".

THE DAILY COURIER

Publisher and Editor,

R. P. MacLean

Published every afternoon except Sundays and holidays at 492 Doyle Ave., Kelowna, B.C. by The Kelowna Courier Limited.

Authorized as Second Class Matter, Post Office Department, Ottawa.

Member of The Canadian Press, Members Audit Bureau of Circulations.

The Canadian Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or to The Associated Press or Reuters in this paper and also the local news published therein. All rights of republication of special dispatches herein are also reserved.

Subscription rate—carrier delivery, city and district 30c per week, carrier boy collecting every 2 weeks. Suburban areas, where carrier or delivery service is maintained, rates as above. By mail, in B.C., $6.00 per year; $3.50 for 6 months; $2.00 for 3 months. Outside B.C. and U.S.A., $15.00 per year; $7.50 for 6 months; $3.75 for 3 months. Single copy sales price, 5 cents, and built the two-storey house

This is not easy to do. It failed.

"Northern Neighbours" magazine has a remarkable editor. He has been at what seems a self-appointed job long while. It is to get all the interesting and favorable news—facts of Russia, its science, construction, health, education, etc., and to present them factually, excitingly and enthusiastically.

And as a man does when he loves his job—and he must—he does it well. But it doesn't run away with him, for all the time the material has to be right. At base is a candor and a refreshing honesty.

Therefore, as an out-and-out propaganda medium there is not the least need to give credit to Canada or others for medical research, as the Courier takes exception to for not so doing. Any more than we expect an advertisement to mention someone else's product. Or an embassy bulletin to speak some other nation's place. That is, it is not a balanced magazine, but a counter-balance, and as much as possible, to the adverse view of Russia.

I have read it and its predecessor, "News-Facts", for many years and found it reliable and a source of surprising information. It has dealt with sleep therapy, longevity and a host of other research products and since the time of Sputnik I, together with the Russian Embassy Bulletin, has been the only consistently reliable and authoritative source of information. No "rubbishy propaganda" (a quiet name for lies) has come from "Northern Neighbours".

NAME OVERLOOKED

The Editor, Daily Courier.

Dear Sir:

The talks on a radio program Monday, April 27, was about the early days of our hospital and both speakers were younger than a few other old-timers whom Mrs. Cameron (mother of "Paddy") asked to join the hospital auxiliary.

We overcast blanket edges, hemmed sheets, pillow cases, etc., and made couch covers for the first nurses' home, a small house, on Park Ave.

In 1912 Miss Mitchell was the matron and there was only one nurse when I was there at Christmas time that year.

Miss Mitchell was a niece of Mrs. Shand. They bought land from my husband, Jim Baillie, due for demolition, has as its last film "No Place to Hide."

across from the community hall at Okanagan Mission. Miss Mitchell later married A. G. Bennet.

The only ladies mentioned on the radio were Mrs. Tom Stirling and Mrs. Fred Taylor. There were of course, many more too numerous to mention but I could not let this pass without Mrs. Cameron's name being mentioned as she was a very keen and active worker.

She and Mrs. Thomas Greene, Archbishop Green's wife, started the church (Anglican) W.A., and I was glad on my return after 23 years to see that a room was named after her. I wish that a larger picture of her could have been hung on the wall—one of her on horseback, as we old-timers so well remember her.

Until the First World War there were these balls attended by our old-timers: the hospital, bachelor's and firemen's. The last was a military ball, before the men left for overseas or the camp at Vernon.

COUNCIL NOTES

Peachland Mill Rate Stays; Paving Of Play Area Okayed

PEACHLAND—The municipality has agreed to a recreation commission suggestion to have a play area, (the cost to be $350), located near the school. Work is to be done during the regular paving operation this summer.

The budget was adopted and calls for a total mill rate of 40 mills, the same as last year, with 19.8 of this for school purposes, 19.2 for general purposes and one mill for debenture purposes.

A nuisance ground area has been selected and when preparation of the site is completed a notice will be sent out. After that, dumping of refuse anywhere in the municipality, than on lot 17, D.L. 2538, will be an offense.

OFFER ACCEPTED

The offer of Jo Davies, to purchase the east 100 feet of lot 8, D.L. 174 was accepted, subject to report of recommendation of the property councillor, which would include the price. At the same time the offer of J. Z. Blower to purchase lot 20 of D.L. 221 was received. No action will be taken until council has the opportunity to inspect the property.

R. Constable was granted permission to install two gas pumps at his "Twin Pines Motel, Trepanier."

In reply to a letter received from the Tolem Twirlers Square Dance Club, the municipality will, without delay, install hand basins in both the rest rooms, and a drinking fountain in Athletic Hall, and will also make the necessary alteration on the one rest room door.

The offer of a grant will be gratefully accepted and will help in defraying the expenses incurred on the operating and improvement of Athletic Hall.

City-Union Negotiations Go To Conciliation Board

A three-man conciliation board is being formed in a further attempt to negotiate a working agreement between the city of Kelowna and its electrical department employees.

Local 1409 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is the only remaining union of civic employees that has not signed a new contract with the city.

Dispute between the city and the fire fighters union was settled by a binding decision handed down by a conciliation board, while just last week agreement was reached between the city council and the two locals (city hall workers and "outside" workers) of the National Union of Public Employees.

NO AGREEMENT

In both instances substantial increases in salaries and other benefits were provided for in the contracts.

Jack Sherlock, provincial labor department conciliation officer in Kelowna, tried last week to find an area of agreement between the city and the electrical workers. But he has reported "no agreement on any matters" and recommended a conciliation board.

Matters under dispute are wages, mainly, as well as classifications, standby provisions, accumulated sick leave, annual vacations and other changes.

A. R. Pollard, an oil company agent and president of the Kelowna Board of Trade, has been appointed by the city representative on the conciliation board. Union representative is Jack Cody of Vancouver.

The employees concerned are line foremen, linemen, power house attendants and meter readers. A spokesman for the union said the local employees are asking for the same minimum wage as received in Penticton.

He said the main item under negotiation is wages, which he described as much as "44 cents an hour behind Penticton now."

As soon as a chairman is chosen, the conciliation board will hold hearings and receive representations from both sides.

STIRLING-PITCAIRN OFFICE?

Oldtimers Divided On Origin Of Landmark

Pioneers and old-timers in Kelowna and district still are not agreed on the origin of the old building that was demolished last week on Leon Ave. immediately west of Reliable Motors.

Captain under a picture of the demolition, in Friday's Daily Courier, invited readers to let this newspaper know their views on the origin of the building.

The difference of opinion seems to hinge on whether or not the building was the former office of the old Stirling-Pitcairn fruit shipping company.

C. Rampone, well-known East Kelowna oldtimer, advised the Courier Monday that he was sure it was the old Stirling-Pitcairn office.

"I remember the building well," he said, "because I worked in there 50 years ago so to see Mr. Stirling." He said the building has been there all the time and was not moved there from any previous location.

But Mr. Duncan Tait of Glenora, another well-known oldtime resident, contends the building under question was not the Stirling-Pitcairn office and it was moved to the Leon Ave. site from where the Kelowna Creamery is located now.

She said Okanagan Investments and the old Kelowna Land and Orchard (K.L.O.) Co. had offices in it at one time and it was also used as a temporary high school prior to the First World War, when the building now called Central Elementary School was being built.

Another man who claimed to have been here for over 50 years but would not give his name over the telephone, claims it was the Stirling-Pitcairn office, and any other views?

SAFETY MEASURES FOR CITY WORKERS

A brush-up on safety practices by all city employees was ordered by city council Monday night.

Department heads were instructed to make sure that all precautionary measures to avoid accidents are followed out. Council felt that employees would co-operate full-heartedly because it was their own interests at stake.

Safety week in the lumbering industry in B.C. currently is under way. Mayor Parkinson said safety week should apply in all industries, and he felt the city itself should be no exception.

Mill Creek Potential Builds Up

Heavy precipitation on the higher levels and cold nights are causing concern to all residents along Mill (Kelowna) Creek and to hundreds of other individuals who would be affected by a flash flood.

The rain and/or snow has increased the much above average water content in the snow and the freezing nights (in the higher altitudes) have slowed down the normal runoff. Such a delayed runoff could mean trouble if a hot spell hit the area, especially if accompanied by warm rains.

"We still have reason for concern," warned Ald. Jack Trendgold, cautiously at last night's city council meeting. He said he didn't want to alarm anyone, but the city should be prepared for eventualities.

Ald. Trendgold, head of the public works department, told council that city workers had completed cleaning out the creek bed inside the city limits and widening of the bed where required.

He predicted the "work will help considerably" if there is a "big influx."

The creek has risen about two feet in the past week or so, but still is far from flood stage. Peaks usually are reached some time between May 15 and May 25.

Meanwhile, according to Ald. Trendgold, the level of Lake Okanagan has risen 2 1/2 inches during the past week from the season's lowest point—98.64 feet.

Agreed minimum is 98.5, while the agreed maximum is 102.5.

Over One Third Of City's Land Pays No Taxes

A further report to city council regarding tax exemption properties in the city revealed Monday night that the "approximate taxable land area" is 805 acres of the city's overall area of 1,281 acres.

"Interesting figures" and a "ridiculous situation" were comments of Mayor Parkinson as he learned that over one third of the city's acreage is not revenue-producing.

J. E. Markle, city assessor, reported 476 acres "more or less" was not producing revenue. This figure includes 143 acres exempt from taxation (such as schools, parks, church and city-owned property), while acreage of non-taxable roads and lanes came to approximately 333.

Revamped Zoning Regulations Soon

Ald. Ernest Winter told city council last night that the long-awaited revamping of the city's zoning bylaw was nearing completion, with a draft expected to be ready for council's study "in two or three weeks time."

This assurance was given him by Prof. Peter Oberlander, Vancouver, who has been working on the revision since early in the year.

Prof. Oberlander, who has made frequent trips to the city, is expected here later this week, at which time it is planned to have the full city council and the advisory planning commission attend a meeting with him.

Chronic Home Necessary But Who Will Build It?

Two choices face the city of Ald. Dennis Crookes advised city council last night. He described the aim as providing desperately needed care, treatment and comfort through the facilities of a modern nursing home.

"We can attempt to raise all the money required through our own efforts or we can interest private enterprise."

"Regardless of which choice we make," the alderman went on, "our aim remains the same. He described the aim as providing desperately needed care, treatment and comfort through the facilities of a modern nursing home."

CITY TO SET BLOOD EXAMPLE FOR LARGE FIRMS TO FOLLOW

City of Kelowna intends to set an example for firms with large groups of employees by organizing a mass trek to the Red Cross blood donor clinic.

A directive to arrange such a trek by those willing to donate a pint of blood was issued by city council last night. Details of day and time are expected to be known later today.

The clinic opened this afternoon and will be open tonight, also from 1:30 to 4 and from 6:30 to 9:30 Wednesday and Thursday.

The Junior Red Cross is contacting all potential donors by telephone.

Ferry Comes Out Of Mothballs For Sheep

Hundreds of sheep are expected to be making their annual spring cross-over to the other side of the lake Thursday.

Two levels of government will be involved again in the mass trek that will likely be the final westbound trip by ferry.

Tentative date for the beginning of the lake transfer is 3 p.m. Thursday. One of the ferry boats currently berthed on the west side of the lake will be used for the trip.

H. M. Trueman, city works superintendent, is arranging details for the moving out of the ferry Pendozi, stripped of engines and all usable parts, and which will be officially turned over to the city Wednesday.

The Pendozi will have to be taken out of the one remaining ferry wharf on the city side of the lake and secured while the west side ferry moves in, loads up and then starts on its way across the lake with Joseph Casorso's sheep.

Government Okays Pleasantvale Grant

Approval of a $15,000 provincial government grant will pave the way for a second session of units on the Pleasantvale Homes Society site at the north end, Ald. Ernest Winter informed city council last night.

He said the sponsoring Kelowna Rotary Club now would take the necessary steps to initiate a building program for eight more units, intended mostly to accommodate single senior citizens, of whom there is a long waiting list.

Dawson Creek Students Take Part In CA Day

The thriving town of Dawson Creek, in northern B.C., has just completed sponsoring a Civic Administration Day, largely due to the efforts of L. A. N. Potterton.

The special traffic control officer sent details of the system to J. O. Neave, secretary of the Dawson Creek Junior Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Neave is a former city employee, and moved to Dawson Creek some time ago.

The Dawson Creek Star in last week's issue, published a number of photographs of students participating in CAD.

Mr. Potterton first started CAD in Prince Rupert in 1946, and when he came to Kelowna in 1953, he recommended that Kelowna Rotary Club adopt the same idea. It has since been held annually.

Civic Administration Day in Kelowna is observed in November.

Civil Defence Officer Laid To Rest Here

Ven. D. S. Catchpole, D.D., officiated at the final rites last week for the late civil defence officer for Kelowna and district, Maj. George Edward Morris.

Funeral service was held at St. Michael and All Angels Church and followed by burial at the Kelowna cemetery with Kelowna Funeral Directors in charge. Pallbearers were J. H. Horn, M. V. Hickman, J. E. Poulton, A. N. Bronson, R. J. Marshall and Ernest Lower.

A resident of the city for the past seven years, the late Major Morris succumbed April 24, at the Kelowna hospital after a brief illness. He was 69 years of age.

He left his native England 50 years ago to come to Canada. He served with the Canadian Army in both world wars, and in between belonged to the permanent force. During the second World War he was assistant director of munitions and supplies with the national defence department at Ottawa. He was a life member of the Masonic Lodge at Kingston, Ont., and was an active worker in the Anglican Church here.

Besides his wife, Agatha, he leaves one daughter, Rose, in Toronto, three grandsons and one brother.

Owen Will Address Yale Bar

Walter Owen, Q.C., well-known Vancouver barrister and current president of the Canadian Bar Association, will be guest speaker when the Yale County Bar Association holds its annual summer meeting here May 23.

Business sessions of the one day convention will be held in the Court House while social activities will centre around the Eldorado Arms hotel.

Some 50 members of the Yale Association are expected to attend with their wives—coming from points as widely distant as Kamloops and Salmon Arm in the north to Princeton and Grand Forks in the south.

Mr. Owen holds a distinguished career as a member of the British Columbia bar. Since his elevation to the office of presidency of the Canadian bar last September he has represented lawyers of Canada in many countries of the world.

ACCEPTS INVITATION

As a result of an invitation extended by him when in England, Lord Parker, the lord chief justice of England, will attend the annual meeting of the CBA at Vancouver this year. American-born Lady Parker will accompany her husband to B.C.

Mr. Owen completed a round-the-world tour last January, during which he was guest of the Ordre des Avocats a la Cour de Paris, in Paris, and at a joint meeting in Tokyo of the Tokyo Bar Association and the International Law Association.

He also attended the International Commission of Jurists' sessions at New Delhi, where there were 155 judges and lawyers from 56 countries attending.

ROUND-CLOCK SERVICE PLANNED BY TAXI FIRMS

Ald. Robert Knox informed city council last night that local taxi companies are trying to work out a plan whereby a full 24-hour service, particularly in the early hours of the morning, will be maintained. Lack of such a service was claimed in a recent complaint to city council.

Aftermath Of Ottawa Gas Blast Is Complicated Court Setup

OTTAWA (CP)—The aftermath of the nine-story Jackson Building across Slater Street blast Oct. 25 has legal people scratching their heads.

Court officials say it is the biggest, most complicated proceeding ever to develop out of one occurrence here. There are 103 suits on file. Damages claimed may total $10,000,000.

The situation developed when an explosion rocked the morning quiet of Slater and Bank streets, demolishing buildings near the two storey office of Addressograph - Multigraph of Canada Limited.

JANITOR KILLED

William Anderson, 65, Addressograph-Multigraph janitor, died of injuries. Thirty-eight other persons were treated at hospitals.

Windows were shattered as far away as Parliament Hill, five blocks north.

The legal entanglement has led to a game of cat and mouse among plaintiffs to see who will bear the expense of litigation which officials say may last two years and certainly will go to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Biggest stated damages so far claimed is by the federal govern-facts of his life are shrouded in obscurity, the real mystery is how this son of humble peasants has maintained himself in power so long.

When he became minister of finance in 1928 with full control over the country's destiny, he seemed the indispensable man. The economy was chaotic in the hands of the military leaders who had overthrown the republican parliamentary regime two years earlier.

Salazar quickly brought order to the government's finances. At the same time he abolished all political parties but formed his own National Union organization. He wrote a constitution for the nation that made opposition to the National Union, and Salazar, virtually impossible.

In addition he instituted total censorship, banned free trade unions and outlawed strikes and developed his secret police.

Despite all this Salazar denies heatedly that he is a dictator or that his regime is totalitarian.

"I believe democracy is a fiction," he says. "I do not believe in equality (among men) but in hierarchy."

Arthur of Toronto as labor representative on the three-man unemployment insurance commission. The appointment has brought a protest from the Canadian Labor Congress.

In the hospital insurance deductibility debate, Mr. Pickersgill said that by not permitting deduction of all hospital expenses the government had merely found a way to raise more money.

Mr. Robichaud said the Blue Cross hospital plan in New Brunswick cost $72 a year for semi-private hospital ward care for a family.

The government plan would cost $50 a year for standard ward care and to get semi-private care another $30 a year would have to be paid to Blue Cross—$8 more than for such care from Blue Cross before the government scheme was concocted.

Both Mr. Robichaud and Mr. Winch suggested that hospital expenses might be allowed as deductions on a proportionate basis—according to the percentage of federal contributions to each province or some similar basis.

Deputy Speaker Pierre Sevigny took the amendment under advisement following a wrangle over whether it was in order. He was to rule on it today.

J. Evans Knowles (PC—Norsk) said tobacco growers are "quite concerned" that cigarette consumption may decline and asked for some assurance that the "law of diminishing returns" won't set in as a result of the higher tax.

Mr. Fleming said there has been little smuggling compared to a few years ago when cigarettes were taxed higher. Cigarette consumption in the last six years had increased nearly 50 per cent to 33,000,000 last year.

In other business: Mr. Winch suggested that man be allowed to claim his common-law wife as a dependent for income tax purposes, but Mr. Fleming said he wasn't going to propose that Parliament amend the Income Tax Act to recognize these "illicit" arrangements. The CCF member suggested many common-law marriages "are more moral than those within the law."

Labor Minister Starr declined to reconsider appointment of trade unionist Alastair F. Mac-professor also is reported in ill health. Last February he was stricken with influenza which later developed into pneumonia.

In the opposition camp, there is fear the shy, often retiring, premier will die in office and that chaos will follow with either the Communists taking over or the army establishing a military dictatorship.

On the other hand, Salazar supporters—those who want his National Union regime to continue—have begged him to give up the premiership for the presidency in order to train a successor. Salazar refused.

His reaction to opposition and criticism—which includes restiveness among some Roman Catholic leaders—was to order widespread arrests and increased activity by his secret police.

Thus he seeks to secure his role as practically the longest-reigning one-man ruler. Morocco and Luxembourg have chiefs of state who have headed governments longer than Salazar, but unlike him they are not active rulers.

Portugal's Premier Salazar Marks 31 Years Rigid Rule

LISBON (AP)—Amid growing murmurs that he has been around too long, Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar marks his 31st year as absolute ruler of Portugal.

Yet, as Salazar also celebrates his 70th birthday, he has given no sign of choosing a successor.

The anniversary of his long rule will be observed Monday. The day following is his birthday.

The twin anniversaries find him with twin troubles.

Accustomed to running Portugal without challenge, he first tasted opposition last June when a former advocate, Gen. Humberto Delgado, senior air force officer, ran for the presidency on an anti-Salazar program. Salazar vetoed re-election plans of his old friend, Gen. Higinio Craveiro Lopes, and selected Admiral Americo Thomaz as the National Union candidate. Thomaz won the election, but Salazar took it as a personal affront that Delgado received 25 per cent of the votes.

The Canadian National Railway Company undertakes to use its best efforts to purchase during each quarter of each calendar year to maturity, when available in the open market at prices not greater than the original issue price, plus accrued interest, at least 1% principal amount of the issue maturing May 15, 1968 and 1/2 of 1% principal amount of the issue maturing May 15, 1977 except that the Canadian National Railway Company may in any quarter of any year apply to this undertaking the purchase of those bonds made during the immediately preceding twelve months and not previously credited. At maturity the maximum amount of each issue which would be required to be purchased by the company under these provisions would be thirty six percent of the original issue.

Principal and interest payable in lawful money of Canada. Principal payable at any Agency of Bank of Canada. Interest payable, without charge, at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank. The bonds will be dated May 15, 1959 and will bear interest from that date.

Delivery of definitive bonds will be made on or about May 19, 1959, without payment of accrued interest. Bonds may be registered as to principal or as to principal and interest. Definitive bonds will be available in two forms: bearer form with coupons attached (this form may be registered as to principal) and fully registered form with interest payable by cheque. Bonds of both forms will be in the above denominations and will be fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form (without charge and subject to the Company's transfer requirements where applicable). The Bank of Canada will act as registrar of this issue and transfers and exchanges may be effected through any of the Agencies of Bank of Canada.

Subscriptions may be made to Bank of Canada, Ottawa, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada. An official prospectus may be obtained from any Agency of Bank of Canada.

These Bonds will be a direct obligation of the Canadian National Railway Company, the Capital Stock of which is owned by Canada, and under authority of the Parliament of Canada payment of the principal of these Bonds and of the interest thereon will be guaranteed unconditionally by the Government of Canada.

The cash proceeds will be applied by the Canadian National Railway Company to the repayment of interest-bearing capital advances from the Government of Canada.

Subscriptions will be received subject to allotment or rejection in whole or in part. The book of the Loan will open at 5 p.m. E.D.T. on May 6, 1959, at Bank of Canada, Ottawa, and may be closed in either maturity or both with or without notice.

There has always been a sort of goodnature rivalry between the top players in America and the leading lights among our British cousins across the sea.

The British will usually concede that when it comes to card play the American experts have an edge. But so far as bidding is concerned, the British claim our methods are inferior to theirs and that, as a result, we do not arrive at the best contracts as often as they do.

All of which is very hard to prove, considering the intangibles involved. The British say the American system of bidding is overly scientific, and that in striving for perfection we use too delicate an approach, the consequence being that the partners frequently do not see the forest for the trees.

Terence Reese, generally regarded as England's top expert, gently pulls our leg in one of his daily columns in the (London) Evening News.

He does not identify the North-South pair who bid the accompanying hand in the way he describes, and it is probably just as well that they remain nameless. Here is how Reese reported the hand in his daily story:

In the same way that when Harry Weetman drives out of bounds he drives much farther out of bounds than the average golfer, so it had to take a couple of "life masters" to go so far wrong as an American tournament.

North: "One club." It "kills" the average American expert to open with a two bid. He likes to approach.

South: "One Diamond." It looks like a notrump sort of hand; this bid may stop a diamond lead. Also it keeps the bidding low.

North: "Two Hearts." Bravo?

South: "Two Notrump." Partner doesn't usually jump like that; don't suppose he has a genuine suit.

Still trying.

South: "Three Notrump." Partner's just horsing around.

North: "No Bid." Can't do any more.

West: "My lead?"

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ESTRELLITA

FOR TOMORROW

No matter how tedious your work, don't shirk responsibilities now. Be careful of details, too. In most matters, you will make more progress working with others than "on your own."

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, since your unusual organizational ability is under fine stimuli in this month—it would be an excellent time, now, in which to stabilize plans for the future, along sound and practical lines. Take advantage of fine planetary influences to get set concerning long-term projects.

With the beginning of June, you will enter a cycle in which it would be advisable to advance from the planning stage to one of activity. All of your creative, imaginative and inventive talents should be heightened then; also your spirit of initiative and enterprise. It will be a good time, therefore, to take the steps necessary for furthering career goals. But do not expect immediate returns. Results may not be forthcoming until October, with further advances in late December getting you off to a good start in 1960.

Personal relationships should prosper pretty generally throughout the year—especially where sentimental matters are concerned, and you may look for an interesting travel opportunity in July. Good news of a financial nature should brighten the first three months of 1960. A child born on this day will be reliable and methodical, but may be inclined toward obstinacy.

Heredity Small Factor In Epilepsy Incidence

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Contrary to general belief, epilepsy doesn't "run in the family." There is some hereditary influence, but not nearly as much as the public apparently thinks. The hereditary factor in epilepsy is about the same as in diabetes, half as much as with obesity and only one-eighth that of migraine.

If one parent is epileptic, the chances of having an epileptic child are about one in 40. If neither parent has this disorder, the chances that one of their children will become stricken are only about one in 200.

However, parents can be normal and still be genetic carriers. If both parents are carriers, they are more likely to have an epileptic child than if one parent were an epileptic and the other perfectly normal.

This does not necessarily mean that children of genetic carriers will inherit the affliction. It merely means that they may inherit a predisposition to the disorder.

Epilepsy is more common than most people believe. It is as common as diabetes or active tuberculosis and its four times as common as polio.

Although we don't have exact figures, because many epileptics just don't reveal their condition, nor is it reportable, it is estimated that between 610,000 and 1,700,000 persons have epilepsy. About 52,000 persons will have their first attack this year.

An estimated 75 per cent of the cases occur under the age of 20. And, according to a recent report of "Patterns of Disease," one child in every 15 has at least one epileptic seizure. Men are more apt to be stricken than women.

WHAT CHANCES?

What are the chances for improvement? In most cases they are pretty good. Almost one-quarter of all epileptics have spontaneous or therapeutically induced remissions lasting from one year to five years.

By using anticonvulsants and other drugs we can help 80 to 90 per cent of the epileptics to enjoy complete or at least partial freedom from seizures. For all practical purposes, these persons can lead normal lives.

Many of them, however, are considerably hampered by legal obstacles. Most states deny or restrict their driving privileges. And 15 states prohibit marriage of epileptics.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. M.M.: Is burning on urination caused by certain food or does it come from other trouble?

Answer: Burning on urination is not usually caused by food, although food may aggravate the condition. The underlying cause could best be determined by your physician.

Communists Slow Down In China

By IAN McCORNE

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Communist China's sweeping change from co-operatives to communes appears to be showing signs of slowing down in the province of Kwangtung bordering this British colony.

Official Communist reports received here recently have indicated a certain amount of disorganization.

1. The proximity of the Canton-Hong Kong out of bounds community for more than a century, and the knowledge of what the West can offer in the way of personal freedom.

2. The size of the "boat community"—the fishermen and the sampandwellers who by tradition have been used to freedom of ready acceptance of a movement in this area are, according to students of Chinese affairs:

Last year the Communists put the fish-rich Pearl River estuary near Hong Kong out of bounds to boat people who refused to join mainland co-operatives. Later they established communes and threatened freeloading.

This led to a big influx of fishing junks into the already crowded harbors of Macao and Hong Kong. The Communists tried to persuade defectors to return, using sailing boats equipped with loudspeakers.

A 23-year-old Austrian girl, who wanted them, they signed up and handed over most of their catch for a small payment and supplies.

Christine Welzenbacher, returned here recently from two months in China which included a short spell as a worker at a model commune near Canton. She said she suspected that this must have been a showplace. Food was more than adequate—rice, vegetables and meat or fish for each meal, and second helpings for those who wanted them.
